GPM, inc. News Bulletin

October 27, 2010

In late August, GPM, inc. internally announced a change of position for Jonathan Urbach within the organization and is now pleased to make that announcement public. Jonathan has assumed the responsibilities associated with the role of Western Regional Manager and is now working out of the GPM, inc. office in Bismarck, ND. Jonathan, his wife Andrea, and their three children have made the transition from Minnesota and are excited to be part of the Bismarck community. While GPM is gaining additional experience for our western regional team, Bismarck is gaining another top quality family for its already top quality community. As a corporation whose primary mission is to serve people within the context of business and the communities in which we live, we are pleased to have Jonathan joining our western regional team in serving the people of the greater western region as well as personally, along with his family, investing in the people of the Bismarck community.

Professionally, Jonathan joined GPM, inc. in 2005 as a regional sales engineer in the Twin Cities region of Minnesota. He has been an effective representative of GPM, providing first class service to our customer partnerships and first class representation of our manufacturing partnerships. His approach to providing value-added solutions for his customers has been a key influence on the growth of GPM in this region and beyond. Jonathan's education as a Mechanical Engineer at the South Dakota School of Mines, and experience as a sales engineer with Diamond Power prior to joining GPM, has proven to be a valuable asset to his work within the power industry as well as other industrial sectors. With the economic growth in North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming, and the concentration of power utilities surrounding Bismarck, Jonathan brings the experience necessary to support the growth of GPM within this region. As Western Regional Manager, Jonathan will serve within GPM to further enhance and support the development of growth within the western region in order to provide the best service for our customer partnerships and the best representation for our manufacturing partnerships into the future. We are pleased to have Jonathan Urbach in this new role within GPM, inc. and to publicly welcome him to this new venture.
